

Micro Questions: Task & Responsibility Analysis

To create time for creating (or some other desire), you'll need to make changes to the work you're already doing. Write the name of a task, project, or responsibility in the center, and use the questions to analyze it. Ideally, when complete, you should see some opportunities to make changes that help you create time.

